

Tshering Samdrup

Agricultural Economist

Tshering Samdrup (Mr) is a PhD scholar at School of Agriculture and Environment at the University of Western Australia. He studied B.A. Economics (Honours) from Sherubtse College and M.Sc. Agricultural Economics (2013) from Humboldt University in Berlin as Erasmus Mundus Scholar. Tshering also attended a Public-Private Cooperation (PPC) certificate course from Copenhagen, Denmark in 2010 as DANIDA Fellow. Tshering's, PhD research is focused on foreign direct investment in agriculture, food security, contract farming, crop diversity, & household income. Tshering has more than 15 years of work experience in media management, finance, consulting & research. While working as a natural resource governance, & institutional consultant for International Centre for Integrated Mountain Development (ICIMOD), Tshering was actively engaged in understanding water management & institutions, value chain governance, & climate-smart agricultural practices in the Himalayas. Email address - samdrup881@gmail.com

Water Research Bhutan